HOROSCOPE

Tuesday, April 24, 1917.

This is a day in which planetary direction is deemed unfavorable, according to astrology. Jupiter is in a faintly benefic aspect, while Mars and Saturn are adverse.

All the signs appear to indicate a period of great commercial and industrial activity, even though strikes, riots and labor troubles are likely to be numerous.

Growth of Socialism will be rapid in the United States in the next year, the stars declare, and there will be a strong trend toward conservatism.

Women have a direction that may lead to serious and even dangerous conditions and to mutual misunderstandings, which will end in strong union or important work.

Accidents are predicted, but both prevention and universal suffrage will prevail in the United States within three years.

Increase of the birthrate and a serious advance in the rate of mortality, among children are foreseen for the summer months.

Warm weather may be late in coming next summer, but it is likely to extend far into the autumn.

Provision should be made for unusual storms in the next month. Crops may be ruined in the south and west.

Persons whose birthdate it is will enjoy a period of peace and quiet, but special attention to business affairs. There may be great provocation to anger or to engage in lawsuits, but peaceable tactics should be followed.

Children born on this day probably will prosper in all material ambitions, although much depends on the hour of birth. Girls may be inclined to marry men of weak or effeminate nature.

Tokio, Japan, April 21.—The result of the election shows a regrettable apathy as to the constitutional development and an absence of a political awakening, according to the Jiji, the Asahi and the Nichi Nichi, leading papers of Tokio. The alliance of the Seiyukai party (constitutional party) with count Teruchi in temporary and certain to precipitate a ministerial crisis. SOME recent changes have been made in the political situation here, and it seems now that Percy Stiles will be the lucky candidate for chief of police. The appointment of a chief has been a matter of no considerable worry on the part of the mayor and aldermen since the election, and affairs have assumed such a condition that disaster seems to be inevitable unless some pledges are broken.

COUNCIL TO CONSIDER SPECIAL ELECTION ON CLOSING STREET

The city council, at its meeting on Thursday, will consider the advisability of holding a special election in the near future to vote on the question of closing the main street intersection with the Southwest railroad. The closing of this intersection was asked by the railroad companies before they start work in constructing the subway, which will entail an expenditure of $1,000,000.

FOUR WEEKS IN HOSPITAL

No Relief—Mrs. Brown Finally Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cleveland, Ohio.—"For years I suffered sometimes it seemed as though I could not stand it any longer. It was all in my lower organs. At times I could hardly walk, for if I stepped on a little stone I would almost faint. One day I did faint and my husband was sent for and the doctor came. I was taken to the hospital and stayed four weeks but when I came home I would faint just the same and had the same pains."

A friend who is a nurse asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I began taking it that very day for I was suffering a great deal. It has already done me more good than the hospital. To anyone who is suffering as I was my advice is to stop in the first drug-store and get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before you go home."

City attorney J. H. McElroy has left for Austin to confer with the El Paso legislative representatives regarding the passage of a bill at this session of the legislature which will result in Government Hill being recognized for city school purposes as well as a part of the city. The last city administration annexed Government Hill, but the state superintendent of schools has ruled that the county shall receive the benefit of the state appropriation for the children of school age. The city also claims this appropriation, which this year will amount to between $7 and $8 per head.

Bedtime Story For the Little Ones

UNCLE WIGGILY AND JUMBO'S PIE.

By HOWARD R. GARIN.

ONCE upon a time, when Uncle Wiggily Longears, the rabbit gentleman, was riding along through the woods in his automobile wondering what sort of an adventure he would have, so he could go home to his hollow stump bungalow and tell Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzie about it—once upon a time the rabbit gentleman heard, from behind a big tree, a voice calling:

"Help! Help! Help!"

"Oh, my goodness me, what a noise and a peanut lollypop!" whistled Uncle Wiggily through his pink, twinkling nose. "Here's an adventure almost before I'm ready for it!" and he stopped his automobile so quickly that he turned a somersault over the turnip steering wheel and out he popped like a cork from a bottle of ice cream soda.

But Uncle Wiggily wasn't hurt a bit, for he fell on one of the soft bologna sausage tires of his auto, and bounced off like a rubber ball. Up he jumped, crying out:

"Who is it wants help, and what's the matter?"

"Oh, lots is the matter," answered a voice, and from behind the tree came Jumbo kinkytail, the little monkey boy, on the ground in front of him was a large flat, pastboard box, about as big as those in which ladies' green, fluffy silk dresses come from the five and ten cent store.

"What have you there, Jumbo?" asked the rabbit gentleman, "and why do you call for help?"

"I got some bacon that we can fry the fish with and some coffee and six doughnuts an' if we don't hetch any I got four eggs an' a apple pie—"

"But this pie is so large I can't carry it home without breaking it, and you know yourself that a broken pie isn't at all nice."

"It certainly isn't," agreed Uncle Wiggily. "But what about this pie? It is a very large one. Where did you get it and who made it?"

"Beckie Stubtail, the little bear girl, made it," answered Jumbo. "It's a very fine pie with raisins on the top, and inside."

"Now, please don't tell me any more about it," begged Uncle Wiggily, holding his paw over his mouth. "What you have already said makes me so hungry for that pie—well, I might just have to open the box and take a bit if you told me any more. So, don't say a word. But tell me where the pie belongs and why you called for help."

"I called for help because I could do longer carry the pie," answered Jumbo. "It is going to the hollow stump school. At least the lady mouse teacher asked Beckie to make the pie and bring it to school. But Beckie made the pie so big that she couldn't carry it. So I said I would, but the pie is heavier than I thought, and—"

"Now, don't say another word," cried Uncle Wiggily, in a loud, jolly voice. "I see how it is. I'll take the pie in my automobile, and you also, and we'll go to the hollow stump school. But where is Beckie, and why did she make such a large pie for the lady mouse teacher?"

"Oh, Beckie has gone on ahead," said Jumbo. "And the reason she made such a large pie is because she wanted to win the prize. You see, the lady mouse teacher said she would give a prize to the girl animal in the house-keeping class who made the largest and nicest pie, and this one with raisins on the top and inside."

"Please stop," cried Uncle Wiggily, raising his paw. "I asked you not to tell me how good the pie was, lest I forget myself and take a bite. Hop in, Jumbo."

So after Jumbo, the monkey boy, had helped Uncle Wiggily lift Beckie's big pie into the auto the rabbit gentleman and Jumbo got in themselves and rode off.

"Oh, look out! There's a big bump!" cried Jumbo, as they went over a stone. The pie is slipping!"

"Hold it fast!" cried Uncle Wiggily, as he slowed down the auto, and Jumbo held the pie as best he could. They went along a little farther and they came to a hole in the road.

"Oh, look out! That pie doesn't fall off here!" cried Jumbo, and Uncle Wiggily and the monkey boy had all they could do to hold the pie in its box on the seat. But they did it, and soon they were near the hollow stump school.

"And there we'll take out Beckie's pie," said Jumbo, sort of smacking his lips.

"Then, all of a sudden, as they came within sight of the school, and saw many of the boy and girl animals ready to go in to their lessons, suddenly Susan Littlebit, the rabbit girl, began crying:

"Ouch! Oh, dear! Right on the end of my nose!"

"What is it?" cried Uncle Wiggily, leaping from his auto.

"Oh, a great big bee flew out from his nest in the belfry and stung me on the end of my nose!" cried Susan.

"Ouch!"

"Oh, get some mud and hold on it!" squeaked the lady mouse teacher. "Mud is good for bee stings."

"But there isn't a bit of mud around here," said Uncle Wiggily.

"But there isn't a bit of mud around here," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, yes there is lots of it," said Beckie Stubtail, the little bear girl. "In my pie," answered Beckie.

"Your pie?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Yes," went on Beckie. "Didn't Jumbo tell you? I made a mud pie so I could have it as large as I pleased, and when she opened the box, there, surely enough, was a great mud pie."

"And to think I took all that care of a mud pie," laughed the bunny uncle. "I thought it was a cherry one. But never mind. Come here, Susan, and I'll put some pie mud on your bee sting."

"And he did, and the sting was all better."

"I didn't mean to fool you, Uncle Wiggily," said Jumbo. "I knew it was a mud pie, and the raisins on top were only make believe ones of stone, but when I tried to tell you—"

"I know," laughed the bunny again. "It was all my fault. But a mud pie is good for something after all."

"And so it was. And if the string of green beads didn't get loose and roll all over the floor for the piano to stop on, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Nannie's flowers.—Copyright, 1917, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

SUMMER NORMAL MAY INCLUDE THREE SOUTHWESTERN STATES

Plans to make the El Paso Summer Normal a Tri-State affair, instead of a Texas school, have been inaugurated by Dr. R. S. White, chairman of the executive committee. A meeting of the three superintendents in El Paso soon, is being arranged. Former mayor C. E. Kelly has left for Austin to confer with senator Claude B. Riddick and state superintendent W. P. Doughty, with a view to completing arrangements for the conference.
